High up in the list of them and worked for special study to-day is the pects. High up in the last of them are marked for special study to-day is the subject of good roads. Think of that. A whole State, men, women and children, talking about good roads, and talking to some purpose, too, because the day has been set apart for discussion of that particular thing.

How is that for cultivating public senti-ment? Isn't it bound to have effect? Here is another pointer for Virginia.

But to return to the reunion. Native "Tar-Heels" are gathered here to-day from thirty States of the Union. Indiana sends the largest delegation. Who would have thought it? But the fact is that North Carolina has done much to make Indiana the great State it is. Wayne county in that State was settled by Tar-Heels, so I am told by a citizen of that enty in attendance upon the reunior (Continued on Seventh Page.)
